EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

to section V.

1. The present invention relates to a method for use in a simplification system, according to the features of claim 1.

The cited documents in the international search report do not appear to get closer to the subject-matter of the independent claims than the documents already acknowledged by the applicant.

2. According to the features of claim 1 the inventive step consists in that a method is disclosed to simplify the use of telephones by reducing the number of digits necessary to make a certain call. normally it is necessary to add to the telephone number the local area code and a company prefix. With this invention the user only dials one digit more instead of three digits.

The underlying concept is not disclosed in or rendered obvious by the cited prior art documents. The subject-matter of claim 1 thus fulfils the requirements of Article 33 PCT.

3. The dependent claims 2 to 9 contain further details on the subject-matter of claim 1. These dependent claims merely limit the scope of protection sought by claim 1 and are therefore also considered to fulfil the requirements of Article 33 PCT.

to section VIII.

1. Claim 1 should read 'A method for use in a simplification system for telephones composed of...' since this claim defines the activities of the user and the units of the respective system i.e. by the steps of a method. Claim 1 is thus considered to be a method claim and not an apparatus claim as it would seem with the present wording, Article 6 PCT.

The same is true for the dependent claims 2 to 9 which should read 'A method according to claim ...' or 'A method for use in a simplification system for telephones in accordance with claim'.

(54) Title: DIALING SIMPLIFICATION SYSTEM FOR TELEPHONES

(57) Abstract

Today, it is necessary to add to the telephone number, the local area code, and a company prefix, if the user wants that the phone call is made by another company. If the user lives near another telephone area in his daily phone calls, he has calls to the neighbour area. That obliges the user to dial the local area code. With this invention the user only dials one digit more, instead of three digits. Today it is possible to use several communications wires. There is a continuous changing of the phone call price and the user has difficulties to keep informed. The simplification system for telephones studies every telephone number based in a logical scheme and with the data that is in the memory, and also counting the digits, and counting the time. Then deletes the extra digit if it exists, and adds, if necessary, the local area code, the company prefix and chooses the wire of communication. It can also receive a normalised message by the wire of communication, that message is studied and then automatically or after confirmation by the user, changes the telephone company, that makes the phone call.

VIII. Certain observations on the international application

The following observations on the clarity of the claims, description, and drawings or on the question whether the claims are fully supported by the description, are made:
see separate sheet

to section V.

1. The present invention relates to a method for use in a simplification system, according to the features of claim 1.

The cited documents in the international search report do not appear to get closer to the subject-matter of the independent claims than the documents already acknowledged by the applicant.

2. According to the features of claim 1 the inventive step consists in that a method is disclosed to simplify the use of telephones by reducing the number of digits necessary to make a certain call. normally it is necessary to add to the telephone number the local area code and a company prefix. With this invention the user only dials one digit more instead of three digits.

The underlying concept is not disclosed in or rendered obvious by the cited prior art documents. The subject-matter of claim 1 thus fulfils the requirements of Article 33 PCT.

3. The dependent claims 2 to 9 contain further details on the subject-matter of claim 1. These dependent claims merely limit the scope of protection sought by claim 1 and are therefore also considered to fulfil the requirements of Article 33 PCT.

to section VIII.

1. Claim 1 should read 'A method for use in a simplification system for telephones composed of...' since this claim defines the activities of the user and the units of the respective system i.e. by the steps of a method. Claim 1 is thus considered to be a method claim and not an apparatus claim as it would seem with the present wording, Article 6 PCT.

The same is true for the dependent claims 2 to 9 which should read 'A method according to claim ...' or 'A method for use in a simplification system for telephones in accordance with claim'.

INTERNATIONAL PRELIMINARY
EXAMINATION REPORT - SEPARATE SHEET

International application No. PCT/PT99/00016

2. Claim 2 contains a reference to the figures 2 and 3. Instead of the wording 'of figure 2 and 3' in this claim it should read 'of the telephone number dialled', Rule 6.2(a) PCT.
